Pre-Selected Risk Appropriate Portfolio Choices

The RAISE 360° Select Models are based on a simple philosophy: adhere to proper diversification and risk appropriate portfolio selection across market cycles. There is no single "best" investment. Rather, investment strategy is a sensible balance of trade-offs.

- An investor's first step is to research an appropriate investment universe.
- The second step is to determine the appropriate blend of strategies.
- The third step is for investors to balance their portfolios in alignment with their risk profile.

Risk Appropriate Investment Strategy Evaluation (RAISE)

RAISE is our methodology for determining broad portfolio balance. This approach tries to help clients make informed decisions. There are two primary risks facing the investor: volatility and inflation. Volatility is a short-term risk and inflation is the long-term risk. Time horizon is a key variable in determining broad portfolio balance. It may be perfectly acceptable for long-term investors to select a more equity oriented investment portfolio, because the passage of time mitigates the risk posed by equity market volatility. On the other hand, if the time horizon is short, an investor should realize that the incremental return expected from equities may not be reasonable given the short-term volatility uncertainty.

Risk Appropriate Portfolio Selection balances trade-offs appropriately to achieve individual outcomes.
